

1. How will I know what type of support I will need?

Every learner is an individual and therefore may have different academic needs/supports.

The initial starting point is a needs assessment with disability staff in the Academic Resource Office which identifies the academic and personal supports which can be put in place in order to help you achieve your potential at college. At your needs assessment your support requirements will be discussed in detail. Where appropriate, arrangements at second and further education levels will be continued.
